Dear guests,

Welcome to the vibrant city of Baden bei Wien!

What was once an imperial summer residence is today a modern spa town with a heightened sense of art appreciation and an opulent lifestyle that invites its visitors to relax and enjoy themselves. The combination of a healthy climate, cosmopolitan charm and elegant flair captivates guests and locals alike and guarantees immediate relaxation as well as long-term recuperation on the edge of the Vienna Woods.

How can you experience this? Take a look at our festival La Gacilly-Baden Photo. This photo festival also provides we Badeners with new and often surprising perspectives full of sensory creativity. From 1st June to 30th September, the aesthetic magic of pictorial narratives - by the best photographers in the world - transform the parks, lanes and squares of our city of Baden into a total work of art. Enjoy a sensual rose-scented walk in Austria's largest Rosarium - with more than 30,000 roses - or experience a delightful evening at the moonlight concerts over the rooftops of the city or at the picnics in the Rosarium.

"I never thought that I'd ever be as lazy as I am here", Ludwig van Beethoven once wrote about the spa town and thereby expresses the special flair of the city of Baden, as we still experience it today. This year we celebrate the 250th birthday of the great genius who so loved the city of Baden and countryside of the Vienna woods.

In more than 200 events throughout the year Beethoven will be experienced both in the classical manner but also, at times, in a completely new way.

Baden also offers a wealth of leisure opportunities. Shopping in the historical city ensemble, a relaxing day in the Thermalstrandbad Lido or the Römertherme baths or an exciting evening at Casino Baden. In the cultural hotspots of Beethovenhaus, Arnulf Rainer Museum and Kaiserhaus you will learn a lot about Baden's glorious history but also about contemporary art and in Baden's Sommerarena you experience a classical operetta under the stars through the open roof. Sheer holiday feeling!

Round off the day with a good "Achterl" (local lingo for 0,125 l) of wine at the Baden "Heurigen". Great personalities have visited Baden in the past. Baden looks forward to your visit this year!

As Mayor of the city, I wish you many wonderful moments and a relaxing stay in Baden bei Wien.

Dipl.-Ing. Stefan Szirucsek
Mayor of the Town of Baden bei Wien

A holiday in a class of its own

Once the summer residence of the Kaisers, and where the Romans bathed in the sulphur springs many centuries before – and today a spa town on the edge of the Vienna Woods, which invites its visitors to relax and enjoy. A combination of a healthy climate, cosmopolitan charm and elegant flair attracts visitors both young and old, and guarantees immediate relaxation as well as long-term recuperation.

The “little Vienna in watercolours”, as the author Gottlieb Saphir once described Baden, offers that unadulterated holiday feeling – with first-class accommodation, luxurious wellness oases and a variety of culinary and cultural delights.

The feel-good factor is increased by numerous opportunities for games of chance, fun, sport and relaxation, such as at the luxurious casino, at cool events, at beautiful golf courses and at the harness race track, which is steeped in tradition. And the town's museums provide lots of food for thought.

Baden – a place where emperors and kings felt at home, and where great composers found their inspiration.

Relaxing lifestyle meets historic tradition.

Beethoven, the superstar in Baden near Vienna

The genius Beethoven as a cranky companion

The great artist was somewhat unpopular with landlords and publicans. He was seen as a miser and a choleric who paid poorly if at all, and who constantly complained about every little thing. When composing, he muttered, lamented, stamped his feet and jangled the piano keys at all times of day and night. As a genius lost in his own thoughts, dreaming up melodies in his mind, he was particularly fond of walking through the "Helenental", where today the Beethoven Stone marks the composer's favourite spot. But there was a different side to the musician, who, after the fire in July 1812, gave a benefit concert for "his spa town". At the house in the Rathausgasse, he wrote all over the lavatory door as well as the window sills if he didn't have paper immediately to hand when inspiration struck. His smart landlord later sold these pieces of wood as curiosities, making a lot of money.

Beethoven among the spa guests

Ludwig van Beethoven, the "superstar" regularly visited Baden between 1803 and 1825, spending several weeks each time during the warmer months. Here he made use of the hot springs, drank the mineral waters, and developed his great love for the landscape of the Vienna Woods – because to him this beautiful place was charged with magic, as the local Badener Zeitung newspaper wrote in its edition from 7 December 1912. The idyllic spa town and splendid nature of the Helenental Valley also inspired the musician in the composition of some of his works, including his 9th Symphony with its famous "Ode to Joy", which is why Baden is also known as the "Town of the European Anthem".

Beethoven House Baden

Visitors can experience the composer's life and work in an entirely new and astonishing way. The Biedermeier living quarters give an insight into the life and milieu of the composer in the city of Baden. In addition, his compositions, which were created in Baden - including the Ninth Symphony - are manifested optically and acoustically in a unique manner. In a dedicated display area, the fourth movement of the symphony can not only be heard, but also 'seen' and 'read'. Additionally, the fundamental principles of music listening and the phenomenon of sound can be explored in a separate audio lab - an experience for young and old.

Bühne Baden – doubly good

Bühne Baden ('Bühne' meaning 'stage') has not one but two great venues, where theatre, music and ballet are presented in a place where the whole world's a stage: the Stadttheater in the town centre and the Sommerarena in the Kurpark, where the imperial and royal outdoor theatre once stood. The Operetta Festival in the Sommerarena is a firm fixture in the cultural calendar, and has become the hallmark of Bühne Baden. And while listening to the enchanting singing, you can enjoy the charming Art Nouveau style of the idyllic Kurpark and the historic flair of the Biedermeier era.

In addition, there are also musicals, opera, ballet and guest appearances from the Landestheater Niederösterreich (Lower Austrian Provincial Theatre) on the performance calendar of the Badener Bühnen.

Mark Seibert & Dorina Garuci in "Bonnie & Clyde"

Town of music

With Kaiser Franz I/II, who himself once merrily played the violin at the Hauptplatz, the stars came to the town of music. Alongside Beethoven and Mozart, Schubert, Strauß and Lanner also came to enjoy the fresh summer air. During the day, they would seek inspiration from the idyllic landscape and colourful social life of the coffee house, and in the evenings play music for Baden's residents over a glass or two of fruity wine.

The classical string and piano concerts of old have given way to modern musical variety, though nothing has been lost in terms of quality. Visitors are spoilt for choice: from a lively music event at the casino or tranquil concerts in the Kurpark to some cheeky alternative art at the Theater am Steg.

All Eyes East

1. June
till

In the inner-city and the parks of Baden

Never give up! - This is the motto of the 2020 festival in two image cycles "Lots new in the East" and "Renaissance".

Instances of these rebirths include not only the gigantic 100 million tree-planting project of festival founder Jacques Rocher, but above all the remembrance of the awakening of the East 30 years ago when the wind of freedom unleashed a remarkable creative impetus in contemporary photography.

Lois Lammerhuber
Photographer & Festival Director

Nature, Beauty, Photography

justify the success of the Festival La Gacilly-Baden Photo. Jacques Rocher established a photo festival in his birthplace of La Gacilly in Brittany in 2004, dedicated to the theme of people and nature. He is deeply convinced that it is an absolute duty to constantly concern ourselves with the future of our planet and to search for humanistic and sustainable concepts for interacting and co-existing with nature. He has, thereby, fashioned the festival into an event whose social relevance has become an international benchmark by bringing together photography and photojournalism – which is unparalleled.

Health, wellness & beauty

Around four million litres of pleasantly warm “yellow gold” flow from Baden's 14 springs each day, helping people to improve their health and well-being. The water with the unmistakable “fragrance”, which pleasantly lingers in the Baden air and thus gives the town its unique character, forms the basis for a comprehensive range of spa and therapy offerings.

The sulphurous trio provided by the company Badener KurbetriebsgesmbH – the Kurhotel Badener Hof, Römertherme and Kurzentrum – has plenty to offer in terms of wellness, beauty and health. It is particularly people with rheumatic illnesses and musculo-skeletal complaints who find relief here.

In the pampering of their guests, the spa facilities are supported by Baden's hotels, the Turkish “Hamam” bath and the lido, which features a real sand beach.

The Römertherme thermal baths

There is a good reason why the country's most beautiful spa bears this name – after all, it was already used by the Romans, who bathed here and enjoyed the healing, invigorating effects of the spring water.

In a space some 3,500 m² in size and situated beneath Europe's largest free-hanging glass roof, the Römertherme allows visitors to enjoy themselves in the water to their heart's content while taking in the splendid view of the Vienna Woods. After a refreshing dip, the wellness area offers aromatic steam baths, healthy heat in the sauna, or fun with the kids in the paddling pool. A soothing massage eases any tensions, while a comprehensive range of training facilities lets you build muscle and burn fat.

The town's spa guests can enjoy time-out from the health programme offered at the neighbouring Baden Kurzentrum spa centre by relaxing and chilling at the Römertherme pool.

The rose – queen of the flowers

May I recommend that instead of using mineral fertilizer, you use organic manure; in practice, that means horse manure or cow dung that has been matured for at least one year.

Through the interplay of suitable soil, organic fertiliser, and ecological horticultural practices, Baden's municipal gardeners endeavour to provide a park that is wonderful to spend time in.

Head Gardener, Stadtgarten Baden

Baden Rose Days

Austria's largest rosarium honours "Queen Rose", with around 30,000 rose plants representing more than 800 varieties blossoming outdoors here. The intoxicating scent of the splendidly-coloured flowers exudes a hint of poetry, romance and nostalgia.

The entire event is one giant sensual experience which stimulates the imagination and makes every heart sing.

As the opening event, Baden's Rose Festival represents a kind of portal into the colourful world of the park, with its richly imaginative garden and rose displays, which enchant visitors and spirit them away from everyday life. In the magnificent opening show on May 30th guests will be entertained by an exceptional crossover from "LudwigVanRammstein" and the Beethoven Philharmonie.

And all the other events are dedicated to the rose, such as "rose scent" walks with professional tips from gardening experts along the way, and picnics.

Other highlights in the comprehensive programme include the meditative yoga and tai-chi sessions in the rose garden.

Highlights

- › Opening and open-air Rose Festival
- › Guided "rose scent" walks
- › Workshops and lectures
- › Rose market
- › And many more events

Picnic in the park

Would you like to have a picnic amidst a sea of 1,000 roses, or in the historic Kurpark?

In Baden there are many opportunities to organise a lovely picnic – either a romantic one with your partner, or with a group of good friends.

The two most popular spots are the fragrant rose garden in the rear section of the Doblhoffpark, and the historic Kurpark.

To allow you to focus solely on the creative organisation of your picnic and not have to worry about shopping, Baden's catering establishments offer picnic hampers filled with regional and international specialities.

In the Enchanted Gardens – Rose-scented Walk

Our vintners in Baden press a particularly large number of different varieties - in many prize-winning quality classifications - compared to other wine regions. You should definitely try the Rotgipfler and Zierfandler varieties, which are only available in our region.

Personally, I love to hike through the vineyard landscape on the Genussmeile during the first two weekends in September and to sample our excellent wines with my friends or spend some convivial time at the typical Baden Heurigen.

Klaus Lorenz
Director of Tourism Baden

Rotgipfler, Zierfandler & Co

Situated on the edge of the Pannonian lowlands, the sun-kissed slopes are where the best grapes flourish. These are processed by traditional vintners into quality wines. Around 12,000 hectolitres of grape juice are produced annually here by the wine-growers, tasted by wine experts and enjoyed by wine lovers in the region's typical “Heurigen” wine taverns.

Baden's wines stand out thanks to their fruity, full-bodied bouquet and powerful aroma. The range extends from light wines which are delicate and more-ish on the palate, through to heavy varieties whose grape-like sweetness is a pleasure to the taste buds.

After a day in the spa, wellness centre or walking trail through the idyllic edge of the town, you should definitely treat yourself to a Heurigen visit, and there enjoy the local cuisine and a good glass of wine.

Active in the Vienna Woods

The thermal spring landscape in and around Baden is ideally suited to Nordic walking, such as through the vineyards to Gumpoldskirchen. Tip for your Nordic walking posture: Pay attention to your upper body vertical alignment by adjusting the pole height correctly. The best way to orient your posture is to have the elbows bent at 90, because that would be the optimal pole height.

Physiotherapist at Badener Hof

Suggested tours for experienced cyclists

Lindkogel – stop-off at the “Eisernes Tor” – exit “Raiffeisen Trail”

Cycle through the Helenental Valley and Sattelbach up to the so-called “Eisernes Tor” (“Iron Gate”), including a look-out tower and refuge. There you can enjoy the panoramic views of the countryside at the foot of the hill before taking a snack break. After a well-earned rest, it's on towards Sooß. Shortly before the “Schneebergblick” fork, turn off left by the “Raiffeisen Trail” sign. The tour ends in the magical wine-producing town of Sooß, where a Heurigen visit after your arrival is essential.

Please note: This demanding and at times steep route requires some skill and mastery of the bike.

Charming walking trails

In Baden, walking is truly fun – this is something the Kaisers and other noble guests already knew to be true, as they enjoyed walking with their entire families through the beautiful nature surrounding the spa town. Yet plenty of artists also enjoyed the tranquillity of the region's fields and woods, and many a masterpiece was inspired by the beauty and fresh air to be found here.

There are many ways to explore the Vienna Woods region: by bike, on horseback, or on foot. Dogs are also welcome in Baden, and will find many dog-friendly routes and dog zones.

Here we mention just three of the many beautiful nature walking trails: the romantic “Wegerl im Helenental”, the spiritual Via Sacra, and the route of the idyllic 1st Viennese Waterway past the local vineyards.

In all the areas which can be explored on foot in the thermal region surrounding Baden, you will not only find enchanting places but also encounter the region's historic past with every step.

This includes the scenes of dramatic events, such as the tragedy at Mayerling involving Crown Prince Rudolph, but also enchanting places to rest, such as Heiligenkreuz Abbey – and its outstanding restaurant.

Welcome to the Great Spas of Europe

"Great Spas of Europe" UNESCO World Heritage nomination

In this international serial nomination, the most important spa towns in Europe are jointly applying to make the innovative model of the "European Spa Town" a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Included are the "Who's who" of pre-eminent historical spa towns of Europe. 11 cities from 7 nations are involved in this unique initiative. Resounding names such as Bath (UK), Vichy (F), Spa (B), Montecatini Terme (It), Baden-Baden, Bad Kissingen and Bad Ems (D), Franzensbad, Carlsbad and Marienbad (CZ) and Baden bei Wien (AT) are of outstanding importance as spa towns in Europe.

At the heart of the nomination, the so-called Outstanding Universal Value, is the European health culture, which is still thriving today, in a combination of medical application and recreation. Also significant are the innovative ideas for the development of modern European cities through the unique combination of purpose-built urban planning and therapeutic landscaping, together with the development of an early form of tourism with specialized infrastructure. Similarly remarkable is the emergence of great cultural works of world importance as well as the spa town's essential role in the social transformation of Europe. All of the above highlight the contribution to World Heritage.

Baden has been an important spa town for more than 2,000 years and is now a modern health destination. A place where not only emperors and kings felt comfortable, but also great artists found inspiration. Prominent names such as Ludwig van Beethoven, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Johann Strauss the elder and the younger or Franz Grillparzer can be found in the guest registers of this city. Baden can contribute to the outstanding universal value of the Great Spas of Europe with the exceptional feature of its unique villa configuration, with more than 500 well-preserved villas, as well as the elaborately designed therapeutic landscape, from the spa gardens to the Badener Rosarium and Helenental.

The nomination was presented in February 2020 by the representatives of the spa towns to UNESCO in Paris. A decision on the awarding of World Heritage status is expected in the year 2020 or 2021.
