

1. Rosarium (Rose garden)

At the end of the 1960's a rose garden was laid out in the parkland of the former moated castle of Weikersdorf with the support of the Austrian Federal Association of Horticulturists. More than 30,000 rosebushes representing 900 different varieties, cover an area of 75,000 square metres with their blooms. Ever year in June, rose lovers from all over the world descend on Baden to enjoy the roses in full bloom during the 'Baden Rose Days'.

2. Thermalstrandbad (Thermal outdoor lido)

In 1926, some years after the end of the Habsburg Monarchy, the Baden Municipality built the Thermalstrandbad, an Art Deco outdoor pool complex, in just 16 weeks. With a water surface of 5,000 square metres and a huge, sandy beach, the Lido complex is intended to evoke the atmosphere of an Austrian Adriatic bathing resort from a bygone age. In 1930 the Thermalstrandbad was extended by the inclusion of a part of the Weilburg palace park, so becoming one of the largest Austrian bathing facilities. The bathing season is from May to September.

3. Römertherme (Roman thermal baths)

In Baden traditional spa therapies and modern wellness treatments combine in perfect harmony. Here you will find one of the most beautiful sauna and swimming complexes in Austria. With a water surface area of 900 square metres, it also boasts one of the largest self-supporting glass roofs of any thermal bath in Europe. The Römertherme conveniently interconnects to the Wellness Centre, the Baden Spa Centre and the Badener Hof Health and Spa Hotel, making for a perfect blend of health care, spa luxury and charming hospitality.

4. Josefsplatz

Josefsplatz is the terminus of the Badner Bahn tram-trainline and the most important transport hub in the city. The focal points of the square are the neo-classicist Frauenbad with its imposing columned hall - now the internationally renowned Arnulf Rainer Museum, and the Josefsbad - a popular meeting place for young and old alike. Nearby is the Florastöckl, a work of Josef Kornhäusel which recalls the Empress Marie Louise, Emperor Napoleon's second wife, and her times in residence at Baden.

5. Arnulf Rainer Museum

The Frauenbad is an architectural jewel built in the neoclassical style in 1821 and based on a design by architect Charles de Moreau. After establishing the spa operation in 1973, the building was used as a supra-regional exhibition centre. In 2009, the Arnulf Rainer Museum was opened in the former spa. Here the extensive work of the internationally acclaimed, Baden-born, contemporary artist Arnulf Rainer is displayed in the authentically restored baths and changing rooms.

Baden bei Wien

Time to enjoy life.

Baden has been a spa resort for over 2,000 years and is nowadays a modern wellness destination. It has 26,200 inhabitants, is just 26 km to the south of Vienna and lies between 220 and 250 m above sea level.

10. Kurpark & Baden Casino

The former Kurhaus, today's Congress Casino Baden, stands on historic ground. Here is Baden's oldest thermal spring: the Römerquelle or 'Roman spring'. Empress Maria Theresia established the city's first park in this place, from which today's Kurpark evolved. It is one of the most beautiful historical garden facilities in Austria. From gaming fun and entertainment in the casino, to the music of the Spa Orchestra concerts – the original spa atmosphere of Baden can still be found here.

9. Stadtpfarrkirche St. Stephan (St Stephen's parish church)

Baden's parish church was founded in 1312. The late Gothic building, with its 64 m high bell tower, is dedicated to St. Stephen. The former high altarpiece of 'The Martyrdom of St. Stephen' now hangs in the church chancel. The baroque organ recalls Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and his 'Ave Verum' which was composed in Baden and premiered in this church in 1791.

8. Stadttheater (Municipal Theatre of Baden)

Baden's theatre scene is almost 300 years old. Today's 700 capacity theatre building, designed by theatre architects Fellner and Hellmer, is built on the site of an earlier theatre by Kornhäusel from 100 years before. Baden's stages include the Stadttheater (Municipal Theatre) Baden and the Sommerarena (Summer Arena) which offer year-round performances of operettas, musicals and dramas with guest performances. The summer arena in its idyllic Kurpark setting, features a special retractable roof. When the weather is fine, you can not only listen to the magnificent singing, but can also enjoy the wonderful summer night through the open roof.

7. Beethovenhaus Baden (Beethoven House Baden)

Ludwig van Beethoven was a frequent visitor to Baden bei Wien. His imperial benefactors lived nearby on the main square or in the Weilberg in the Helenental. Beethoven stayed repeatedly in the house at number 10 Rathausgasse between the years 1821-1823. And it was here he worked on the „Missa Solemnis“ and composed large sections of the world-famous Ninth Symphony, from which comes „Ode to Joy“ - our present European Anthem.

6. Hauptplatz (Main square)

The main square's present appearance dates from reconstruction work after the city fire of 1812. Architectural highlights include the town hall, which was designed by the architect Josef Kornhäusel; the Emperor's house, which was the Habsburgs' summer residence from 1813-1834 (and the residence of the last Austrian emperor from 1916-1918). Another feature is the trinity column by the sculptor Giovanni Stanetti, which measures almost 20 metres. The square is the centre of the city's extensive pedestrianised zone.

Baden bei Wien

Welcome to Baden bei Wien!

Excellence in wellness and spa indulgence in Baden bei Wien

At the heart of the Biedermeier-era city of Baden lie the Römertherme thermal baths, the Baden Kurzentrum spa centre, and the Badener Hof health and spa hotel. Here, discerning guests receive spa-based medical expertise, opportunities to recuperate, and a top-class, stylish hotel atmosphere.

Thanks to the direct connections between these establishments, therapies, prophylactic programmes, and wellness packages as well as consultations on nutrition and fitness are provided in a targeted fashion by highly qualified doctors, therapists, and trainers to restore and maintain your health.

The so-called „yellow gold“ – Baden's sulphuric spring water, rich in precious minerals – emerges from a total of 14 springs, some almost 1,000 metres deep. It is primarily used in the form of baths, mineral applications, and water therapies for the successful treatment of rheumatic conditions and mobility impairments. It has excellent antioxidant effects, and makes a valuable contribution to the prevention of chronic illnesses caused by modern lifestyles.

At the Römertherme Baden – the thermal baths with Europe's largest free-hanging glass roof – guests in need of recuperation will find great healthcare and spa indulgence. 900 m² of water-based fun, a large sauna and steam room area with an infrared cabin and in-house wellness centre provide relaxation and a sense of well-being.

With its direct connection to the Badener Kurzentrum spa centre and Römertherme thermal baths, the Badener Hof health hotel is the ideal complement to a well-rounded health-based holiday. 72 spacious rooms, including ten suites, professional medical and therapeutic treatments, friendly staff, and food that has won the „Grüne Haube“ award for healthy cuisine play a fundamental role in your recuperation.
